Border ultra runners aim to conquer Comrades

Moseleli Luyaba has led the region's club runners home on two successive occasions and will be hoping to rekindle that form on Sunday

BOB NORRIS

Various club contingents from the Border-Kei region are travelling to KwaZulu-Natal for Sunday's Comrades Marathon between Durban and Pietermaritzburg and the roads will be filled with nervous and excited runners.

Four of the top five men who did Border proud in 2023 on the down run will be back, hoping to prove their worth on the Valley of a Thousand Hills, as they tackle the famous up run that encompasses the dreaded Polly Short's climb, about 8km from the finish.

Moseleli Luyaba of Nedbank has led the Border club runners' home on two successive occasions and will be hoping to rekindle that form on Sunday, following a surprise second place at the inaugural Great Koi Marathon in 2023.

Comrades was 6:03:49.

Second home was his club compatriot, Latamile Danile, who returned a personal best of 26:20 in recording 6:13:54.

The third runner home, Sifiso Ngumakwe, appears not to be entered in 2024, which is a pity after running 6:22:42 at his last attempt.

One of the big surprise performances of 2023 was that of Xolisa Ntombini, in the colours of Chille Runners, when he was the fourth local man to finish in 6:33:18.

Other runners to keep an eye on include Patrick Gogole, Lihle Mpongoma, both of Nedbank, Freddy Tjanyetha of Komani Runners, Ntulo Mkhuzo of BCM and Lindani Mthethwa, Khanyiso Mgozohwa and Lwando Jack of Original Mann-bas. Also worth looking out for are Lukhanyo Ndongweni of Khuleni, Eric Madau of Komani AC, Monwabisi Ntzeni a previous Washie 100 winner from Easy Equities Born2Run, Peter Chivaya of Oxford Striders, Lwandile Ngobe of SAPS Striders, Phumlani Kumbaca of Suterherm AC, Gcinuzi Dedeke of Powered-up Runners.

Bulls cannot underestimate Benetton in URC quarterfinals

The Bulls will have to dig deep when they take on unpredictable Italian side Benetton in their United Rugby Championship (URC) quarterfinal clash at Loftus on Saturday.

The Bulls will be looking for their second win over the Italians on the highveld after they beat them 56-35 in the pool stages last month to book a home semifinal spot.

Utility back Canan Moodie admitted the Pretoria side are up against tough and experienced opposition who have played solid rugby to get to this stage of the tournament.

"They are a good team with lots of Italian international players who bring cool heads to the game. We don't take them lightly and we know they are not going to be an easy team [to beat]," the Springbok back said.

"We played them about three weeks ago but they have international players who know these situations well and know how to function under pressure. In the quarter you want to start well, especially when you are playing at altitude.

"You want teams to get tired but they would have learnt from the match we played against them a few weeks ago to slow the game down and thieve."

The Bulls finished in second place on the URC leg behind Munster in a campaign where they won 13 of their 18 matches. Moodie said that puts his team under more pressure than the visitors.

"There is going to be pressure on us because we finished in second spot and we are playing a quarterfinal in front of our supporters — hopefully we will also have a home semifinal [by progressing]."

"There is going to be pressure on us to perform at home. It is nice to play at home and not having to travel."

"But we are not going to take them lightly because they are a dangerous team. They are like us a few years ago where we went through the long road and fought through every game."

The Bulls beat the Sharks last weekend to temporarily go top of the log. Moodie said they were not at their best in that game.

"Last weekend was tough. The Sharks are a good team and it is never easy playing a derby game. They made it difficult for us — at times we were not at our best, but we will improve on certain aspects of our game this week."

Moodie has played at wing and centre this season and is happy to make a contribution where coach Jake White wants to deploy him.

"For now on the wing is probably where I feel I am contributing more than I would as 13. We are getting a lot of reward from our kicking game for me and Kurr-Lee Arendse to chase those balls and win back for us."

"I think we are in the top three at the moment for teams doing that. It's a good weapon for us and that is what is needed for the team. I will give my best for the team where I am needed."
